

In tables 37 and 38, financial statistics for the Territorial government appear in relatively summary form, and according to a framework suited below. These figures are from the annual Census Bureau report, Compendium of State Government Finances in 1957, which also includes other detailed figures and a comprehensive glossary.

Table 45.—SUMMARY OF LOCAL GOVERNMENT STRUCTURE IN PUERTO RICO: 1957

There were 96 local governments in Puerto Rico as of January 1957.

MUNICIPALITIES (75)

The area of Puerto Rico and the nearby small islands under its jurisdiction are divided into municipalities which, with the exception of the Island of Culebra, are classified, for Census purposes, as independent local governments. The municipalities resemble New England towns in that they are composed of, and perform services for, both urban and rural areas. Except for San Juan, they are governed by elected municipal assemblies and an elected mayor (alcalde) is the chief executive officer. San Juan, however, has a 13-member Board of Commissioners, 7 of whom are elected and 6 appointed by the Governor. A city manager, appointed by the board, is the chief executive officer.

In Puerto Rico, the Commonwealth Government or its public authorities provide fire, police, water, sewer, park, education, and most-hospital and health services for the municipalities. The major municipal functions are paving and maintenance of streets and plazas, garbage collection, cemeteries, markets, slaughterhouses, and municipal jails.

The municipal district comprising the Island of Culebra is treated, for Census purposes, as a subordinate agency of the Commonwealth Government. It is administered by an elected mayor but the Council of Secretaries of the Commonwealth acts as its Municipal Assembly. Fiscal requirements of the Island are met from appropriations from the general fund of the Puerto Rico Commonwealth. "Cities," "towns," and "villages" which in continental United States usually constitute separate units of local government are, in Puerto Rico, subdivisions of the municipalities without local self-government. Also in this class are the "barrios" usually representing areas of common neighborhood or community interests and used principally for mapping purposes.

SCHOOL DISTRICTS

The public school system of Puerto Rico is considered, for Census purposes, as a dependent activity of the Commonwealth Government. Since 1946, all educational activities have been supported exclusively by appropriations from the central government to the Department of Education and ownership of all public school buildings and property is vested in the Commonwealth.

Puerto Rico is divided into "school districts" which are administrative areas of the Commonwealth Department of Education. Each municipality constitutes a district, except for the capital (San Juan), which has 2 districts—San Juan and Rio Piedras—and 1 of the smaller municipalities and the Island of Culebra, which are parts of the districts of neighboring municipalities. Each of these "school districts" has a school director appointed by the mayor and a superintendent of schools appointed by the Department of Education. However, the capital has 1 school director and 2 superintendents of schools.

SPECIAL DISTRICTS (21)

Puerto Rico statutes authorize the creation of the following types of special districts which are treated, for Census purposes, as independent local governments.

Municipal housing authorities (3)

Housing authorities are established by resolution of the municipal governing body with the approval of the Council of Secretaries of Puerto Rico. Each is administered by a board of commissioners appointed by the mayor, authorized to fix and collect rentals, issue bonds, and accept appropriations from the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico and receive assistance from the Federal Government.

Puerto Rico Housing Authority

This authority was established by special act to undertake slum clearance and develop low-cost housing in areas not served by municipal housing authorities. It is governed by a board of commissioners—appointed by the Governor with the consent of the Senate—which may fix and collect rentals and issue bonds. This authority may also accept appropriations from the central government and receive Federal assistance.

Soil conservation districts (17)

These districts are established by the Puerto Rico Soil Conservation Committee on petition of land occupiers and after public hearing and referendum. They are governed by boards of supervisors consisting of 3 elected members and 2 members appointed by the Soil Conservation Committee. The districts may require contributions for benefits and may accept contributions from any source.

SUBORDINATE AGENCIES AND AREAS

In Puerto Rico there are a number of public agencies which derive substantial amounts of revenue from the operation of their facilities. These agencies, however, are either organized as parts of established departments of the Commonwealth, or have boards consisting of officials of the Commonwealth in an ex officio capacity or of members appointed by the Governor. They are considered, for Census purposes, to be subordinate agencies of the central government rather than independent local governments. These agencies are listed below. (As to educational agencies of this nature, see "School Districts" above.)

- Puerto Rico Aqueduct and Sewer Authority
- Puerto Rico Banks for Cooperatives
- Puerto Rico Communications Authority
- Puerto Rico Industrial Development Company
- Puerto Rico Ports Authority
- Puerto Rico Transportation Authority
- Puerto Rico Water Resources Authority
- Irrigation District, South Coast (Guayama)
- The Southwestern Puerto Rico Irrigation District
- Isabela Irrigation Service
- The Government Development Bank of Puerto Rico
- The Land Authority of Puerto Rico

Puerto Rico law also provides for senatorial and house of representative districts for election purposes.

Note: The Commonwealth Government directly or through special authorities provides some services that commonly, within the Continental United States, are provided only by local governments. For this report, accordingly, Commonwealth revenue and expenditure amounts are shown distinctively for various "local" activities--applying categories commonly used only for local government amounts in Census reports on governmental finances. The categories involved mainly involve local utilities (electric power, water supply, and local transit systems), local police and fire protection, local parks and recreation facilities and services, and sewers and sewage disposal.

To avoid duplication, interlocal transactions are netted out in arriving at local government and Commonwealth-local aggregates, see text.

Comprises mainly contributions from municipalities to the Commonwealth Highway Department for municipal extensions of highways and to the Aqueduct and Sewer Authority for water and sewer facilities, as reported by the Commonwealth. Such intergovernmental payments were not reported distinctively for the individual municipalities and therefore do not appear explicitly in local government statistics herein.

¹Document and transfer taxes.

²Includes an unsegregable amount of interest on utility debt.

³Including amounts for functions not shown separately.
